I am writing from the yearly WSIS Review in Geneva where the United Nations community working towards a quality information society is convened by ITU and UNESCO to assess progress and changes.

The World Summit on Information Society (WSIS) process towards 2025 is the framework for WSA and all our shared efforts and work to promote, select and award best practice in content driven interactive digital applications and solutions.

All social entrepreneurs share the perspective that it is crucial to build the right community, reach users, attract an audience. Technology is not the issue.

The World Summit Award presents and serves as community platform for a rich and creative spectre of content from all over the world and narrows the content gap, gender gap, knowledge and skills divide.

In this context, I would like to take this opportunity to thank you personally for your ongoing partnership with WSA and your engagement as a member in this unique global community.

Peter A. Bruck

More on the WSA presence at WSIS here...
The WSA workshop during the WSIS Forum was all about how inspiring and useful solutions developed by WSA winners build an inclusive knowledge society. Contributing were also three of the WSA Youth Ambassadors: Sharmishta Sivaramakrishnan is the UN Youth Representative for Caring for Cambodia, Jon Mark Walls leader of the GovFaces project, Sanny Gaddafi, founder of 8villages and WSA Speaker Jordi Serrano Pons, founder of Universal doctor speaker.
